Introduction of Program—Lella Lowe: “Exploring a Faith-Based Response to Climate Change”

The global surge in migration over the past decades, often linked to climate change, is now frequently in the news and has spurred a new era of hard-right politics in wealthier countries, including the United States. According to Colette Pichon Battle, a New Orleans-based climate justice strategist and lawyer, “We must start preparing for global migration today. It's a reality now. Our cities and our communities are not prepared.” Join Lella Lowe, long-time environmental champion, as she sets the stage for what we are facing and invites conversation about the role of faith communities in preparing for climate-linked mobility and our call to compassion and solidarity with the poor and the stranger.

Kelly Childress: “Council on Aging”

Kelly will discuss resources available in Baldwin County for the aging population. The Council on Aging's mission is to serve as an advocate for Baldwin County seniors. To educate and enlist the support of all levels of government, service agencies and private organizations that can assist with securing resources and implementing programs. The Council on Aging is dedicated to preserving dignity, independence, and peace of mind for the senior citizens of Baldwin County.

Born and raised in Baldwin County, Kelly has been employed with the Council on Aging for 26 years.
